ENGLAND.

The Paris correspondent of The London Times writes the discussions as to the common-line-of-pole v to be adopted by France and England on the American question have been again renewed. The subject has been mooted before, but was postposed. Possibly information brought over by Prince Napoleon may have contributed to make the Emperor more inclined to listen to proposals which might be made in this respect by England.

Doctor Russell's last letter is dated "Washington, Oct. 4." In it he alludes to a great expedition to sail the end of October. He says that the Government is determined to open a cotton port, and it don't believe in the oaths of the Southerners that they will never give a sale of cotton to the Yankees, but think the temptation of the high prices prevailing will attract large supplies of cotton to port for exportation. Thus a Government monopoly may be created in cotton, and a strong protectionists Government will scarcely fail to put on a serew with foreign customers.

After the ceremony, various addresses were presented, to which the King replied as follows:

"The Kings of Pruesia have now worn the crown blackbirds that begs bears. I am the first King to ascend the throne since the crown who has been surrounded with institutions in harmony with our times. But, remembering that the crown comes from God, I have been notified by my coronation in this sacred place that I received it in humility, and know that the prayers of noy people secompany me in this solemn act. The love and fidelity displayed toward me times my accession to the throne, and which has just been manifested toward me in such a touching manner, are tokens I may reckon, under all circumstances, of the fidelity, devotedness, and self-sacrificing spirit of my people. Trusting in these quantities, I could renounce the custom of requiring the oath of allegiance and fidelity from my faithful people. The gratifying proofs of their affection and devotion, afforded en occasion of a late event, have strengthened this confidence. The providence of God has preserved the blessings of peace to our dear patternal. My valiant army will protect it from dangers without. As regards dangers in the interior, Prussia will remain free of them, because the throne of her kings remains strong in the power and right of unity between the King and people, which has made Prossis great. While it continued to exist, we shall be enabled, on the ground of acknowledged rights, to resist the dangers of an egitated period, and all threatening storms. May flow will it so.

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held last evening at the Oseon Armory, Williamsburgh, to take measures for the formation of a first-class regiment of militia for the Eastern District. The meeting was held pursuant to a call of the four Captains of the Brooklyn Grays (a Home Guard), comprising 400 members, all of whom are ready to join the proposed regiment. The Mayor and a number of the first citizens of Brooklyn were present. His Honor, Mayor Kalbileish, acted as Chairman, and opened the meeting with a few patriotic remarks, arging the importance of keeping up the State Militia. Brig.-Gen. P. S. Crooke of the 5th Brigade, delivered an appropriate and interesting address. The Hon. Jas. Briggs, Demas Strong and Daniel Northup also addressed the meeting. At the conclusion, those present wishing to join the regiment were invited to hand their names to Capt. Gott. A large number of your g men expressed their willingness to engage in the enterprise, and if all who gave their names are accepted, it is believed that a sufficient number will be obtained to recure a charter from the State at once. There is very little doubt but Williamsburgh will soon have a good regiment of militia.
